

Success stories

Royal College of General Practitioners - Euston Rd., London

Royal College of General Practitioners, Euston Rd, London

The Royal College of General Practitioners is a network of family doctors who all work together to encourage and maintain the highest standards of general medical practice and act as the voice of GPs on education, training, research and clinical standards.

September has seen the completion of the College's new headquarters on Euston Road, adjacent to Euston Station, which offers a new auditorium, conferencing facilities, a clinical skills assessment centre, members' study areas and modern facilities for the College staff. Our installation consisted of 2 Jeven JCE-UV hoods for both the main general prep kitchen and the function kitchen.

Jeven JCE-UV hoods are equipped with a combination of cyclonic and ultraviolet filters, as well as supply and direction air with pressure and noise damper plates and measurement taps.

